

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Work and Workers

PROFESSOR G. A. JOHNSTON ROSS, of the Presbyterian College at Montreal, Canada, has been appointed to the professorship of Homiletics in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, for next year.

IN the recent death of Professor Willis J. Beecher of Auburn Theological Seminary, American biblical scholarship has suffered a fresh loss. An account of Professor Beecher and his work will appear in the July Biblical World.

THE death of Principal A. M. Fairbairn, of Mansfield College, Oxford, which occurred in the past winter, removed a figure of international significance in theology. Professor Fairbairn paid more than one visit to America, where he had a wide circle of friends and readers.

FEW men now living have contributed more importantly to New Testament study than Adolf Jülicher, professor of church history and New Testament exegesis in the University of Marburg. Adolf Jülicher was born January 27, 1857, and attended gymnasium and university at Berlin. After a brief privat-dozentship in church history at Berlin, he became, in 1889, ordinary professor at Marburg, where he remained. Among his numerous writings his Einleitung in das Neue Testament has won him widest recognition as a leader of critical New Testament scholarship. A portrait of Professor Jülicher among his books forms the frontispiece of this issue of the Biblical World.

PROFESSOR ADOLF JÜLICHER